TIM MACKLEY

Based in London, Tim Mackley has been designing gardens since 2003, when he left a career in the media industry to study horticulture and garden design at Capel Manor College. He now works in London and the south east, giving many an urban plot a new lease of life. One of his gardens (shown here) was shortlisted for the Society of Garden Designers Awards 2012. Designed to accompany a refurbishment of the house, the garden reflects the modern interior, with clean, geometric lines and gentle terracing to deal with a slight slope. A rectilinear pool with 'floating' stepping stones mirrors in scale a new glass extension at the back of the house. Tim's website gives a clear explanation of the design process and features past projects. www.timmackley.co.uk
